The Innovators 2018

In the June 2018 issue, Global Finance will present The Innovators 2018, the magazine's fifth annual awards program recognizing entities that regularly identify new paths and design new tools in finance.

This year, Global Finance is taking a wider view than in the past, and seeks to recognize the most innovative individuals and organizations—including banks and non-financial corporations (or divisions within them), fintechs, government agencies and other related entities—working in finance today. These are organizations and people that best encourage and support creative thinking and are able to develop that thinking into viable financial solutions.

Innovation is often synonymous with technology. However, we are also interested in innovations that are not technology-based, e.g. creative audience targeting in financial marketing, or a financial product with an innovative feature.

As they review the submissions to determine the Most Innovative Organizations and Most Innovative People, Global Finance editors will also, at their discretion, select specific innovations from the entries for recognition in specific categories: most innovative app, most innovative partnership, etc. Applicants may suggest a new category for their innovation.

Global Finance will honor top innovators—organizations and individuals—in each region as well as globally. Country-level awards will be made at the discretion of the editors.
